BATURDAY, MAY 7, 1864.

Before the Battle. "O, Liberty! sweet Liberty! Like love, thou bringest sorrow; And yet, for but one hour with thee, Who would not die to morrow?"

Soud or Function.

Long, before the buttle boys, A song of veriest glee;

A hearty shout, a ringing cheer, For who so glad as we! By the enered land that bore us, By the dear home-once that love us-aye, By the starry banner o'er us, Win we liberty to-day-or die!

Here's health before the battle, boys, In crimeon wine so free—
Then drain again the brimming cup,
For who so strong as we!
By the fair ones that adore us, By the prayers of sainted mothers-age, By the glorious prize before us, Win we Liberty to-day-or die!

Good bye! before the battle, boys, A final one may be, A shake of hands, but not of hearis, For who so brave as we? By the sacred land that bore us, By the sires whose blood redoemed us -aye

By the old flag waving o'er us, Win we liberty to-day—or die! Huzza! now comes the battle, boys, One blow, and we are free;

Huzza! to glory or to death! Aha! how faw we are we. By the tattered banner o'er us, by the heaps of fallen comrades-aye! By the brave ones gone before us, Win we liberty to-day-or die!

-Exchange The Rebel General Forrest and his Family.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribuna. KNOXVILLE, E. T., April 18, 1864. The news of the capture of Fort Pillow by Forrest, and the cowardly butchery which followed of blacks and whites, alike, has produced a profound sensation here. The universal sentiment is, "let no quarter be shown to these dastardly butchers of Forrest's command while the war lasts. These Forcests, the oldest of whom, Gen. Bedford Forrest, has by this and other atrocities, obtained such a record of infamy, were all negro traders. There were four brothers-Bedford, who kept a negro-pen for five years before the war on Adams-street, in the rear of the Episcopal Church, Memphis, John, a cripple and a gambler, who was jailer and cierk for Bedford; Bill For-IV. Hereafter occupants of Stores and rest, an extensive negro trader at Vicksburg; and Asron Forrest, general agent for his other brothers. They accumuand other influences a natural promotion to a Brigadier in the women-whipping, baby-stealing Rebel Confederacy. He is about 50 years of age, tall, gaunt, and sallow-vasaged, with a long nose, deep set, black, snaky eyes, full black beard without a moustache, and hair worn long. He usually wore, while in at an angle of forty-live degrees. He was accounted mean, vindictive, cruel and unscrupulous. He had two wives, one white, the other colored (Catharine) by each of whom he had two children His "patriarchal" wife, Catharine, and domestic jars. The slave-pen of old Bedford Forrest, on Adams street, was a perfect horror to all negroes far and near. His mode of punishing refractory slaves was to compel four of his fellow slaves to stand and hold the victim stretched out in the air, and then Bedford and his brother John would stand, one on each side, with long, heavy bull whips, and cut up their victims until the blood trickled to the ground. Women were often stripped naked, and with a bucket of salt water standing by, in which to dip the instrument of torture, a heavy leather thong, their backs were cut up until the blisters covered the whole surface, the blood of their wounds mingling with the briny mixture to add torture to the infliction. One slave man was whipped to death by Bedford, who used a trace-chain doubled for the purpose of punishment. The slave was secretly buried, and the circumstance was only known to the slaves of the prison, who only dared refer to the circumstance in whispers.

his white wife had frequent quarrels or

Such are the appropriate antecedents in the character of the monster who murdered in cold blood the gallant defenders of Fort Pillow.

From the Indianapole Journal. Kight. The order of Gen. Low Wallace which we append, is about the first ever made by a commander of the Baltimore Department that seemed to us to reach clear down to the "thirsty place" in a loyal woul and satisfy it. In effect it transfers to the Government the incomes, interest and dividends of all real estate, stocks, bonds and moneys of rebel citizens of Maryland who have left the State for the Confederacy, and leaves their relatives and friends to do without. It also keeps the proceeds of the labor of slaves belonging to such refugees for the support of the slaves themselves when they shall be emancipated. In both points it is wise and timely, and the wonder is that it was not done long ago. The day is past for treating rebels with consideration or even with mercy. HEADQUARTERS MIDDLE DEPARTMENT,) Eighth Army Corps,

Baltimore, Md., April 26, 1864. General Orders No. 30. Many citizens of this department have gone voluntarily into the States in rebellion against the United States, some to join the rebel astny, others to aid and encourage the rebellion by their pres ence and otherwise, who have left pro perty in real estate, slaves, stocks of various descriptions, and other securities for money, in this department. And many citizens of the States in re bellion, who have participated in and encouraged that movement, have simi lar property within the department. It is deemed important that such property should not be under the control of such persons, and liable to be used in whole or in part in the support of the rebel lion, and against the interests of the United States. It is, therefore, hereby ordered that the proceeds of all real estate, the hire of all slaves, the interest on all debts due from persons in this department, the current interest on all private debts, the dividends and interest on all stocks and bonds of railroad companies, banks, turnpike road companies, manufacturing companies and public corporations, however deliverable and payable, which are the property of the persons above described, and are within this Department, shall be withheld by the persons authorized, and whose duty it is to pay the same, from such person, their representatives, agents and attorneys, however constituted; and that the same shall be paid over to Lieutenant Colonel Alexander Bliss, Quartermaster of this Department, or such other gentleman as the General commanding may authorize and appoint from time to time. All persons having authority over such property will be held responsible for such sums as may be paid in violation of this order, and be otherwise punished by military commission The hire and the proceeds of labor of such slaves as are in the counties of W. FREEMAN'S Maryland in this Department, and belong to the parties above described, will in due proportion be set apart and reserved for the use of such slaves when they shall have been freed by the constitutional laws of Maryland, as it hoped they soon will be.

By command of Maj. Gen. Wallace.

inally eradicated from the system. Recent cases oured in a few days.

It would appear needless here to add the impertunce of "nipping the evil in its bud," but, a hint to the wise may be sufficient, not only to save themselves from misery, but to shield their offspring from shame and rula.

How often is it the case we see gentlemen dreach.
